Builder Profile

Cal Weidenbach Construction

Cal Weidenbach has been building homes in Rapid City since 1973. He started Weidenbach Brothers Construction with his brother, Al, and together they built homes for over 25 years. In 1999 Cal broke off and started his own company and spent the next five years working mainly in the custom home market. He has built everything from entry level spec homes to half million dollar custom homes, commercial properties and has also done remodels. He works hard to always maximize space in the homes he builds, taking time to plan adequate storage areas and living areas that make sense for the way people live. Cal also takes long term living into consideration, planning for energy conservation so people can afford to live in the homes he builds. He always puts money into using the best materials so the end product is quality from the foundation to the roof.

Cal works daily with his construction crew and is therefore very accessible at job sites. He enjoys his work and appreciates the importance of maintaining close customer contact. He knows that education in the new home buying process is key and always tries to make himself available when customers have questions so he can eliminate anxiety up front. He is very organized and multi-tasks to stay one step ahead, and his attention to detail and quality construction is evident in everything he does.

All this experience and work ethic means that when you buy an Emerald Heights Townhome, you will get the best in quality and customer service and a house that you will be proud to call home.
